Breaking ground...

Catholic school district may expand to Didsbury

by Tamara Collins

Canvassers are presently going door to door in Didsbury, to get a clear picture of how many families would send their children to a Catholic school in Olds.

It was only a few months ago it was announced the Red Deer Separate School District (RDSSD) would expand to Olds. The first ever Olds Catholic school is expected to open up in Sep. 2005, and it is possible this school will include some Didsbury students.

As the RDSSD continues to spread into rural areas, Chinook's Edge School Division (CESD) is fearing the loss of more students.

"My concern is not a religious thing," said CESD Board chair, Roy Brassard. "There are only a small number of students, and if students are bused to a Separate school in Olds, we are going to be even further restricted with offering programs than we already are."

The number of students attending Didsbury schools has already been on a steady decrease. Since 1999 the student population has dropped 20 percent.

According to Brassard, if these students are then divided up, we are going to be left with two struggling school boards.

"Another concern I have, is that students are going to lose their representation," said Brassard. "As a trustee I am here to assist students when they need it. The representation for the Separate School Board is all in Red Deer."

Brassard feels the ideal solution would be to have the two school boards, Separate and Public, share a school. The Separate School Board though does not agree, they want their own school.

Once the canvassing is complete, a meeting will be held, if the numbers show enough interest (quorum) in a Separate school, Catholics will be asked to vote. If 25 percent of voters, vote in favour of sending their children to the Catholic school, it will happen.

"If this happens programs will definitely be affected," said Brassard. "Years ago we wanted to offer a French program at the schools, but the numbers were just too low. The numbers are even lower now, and if students go to the Separate school, the numbers will drop even further. This could also create a division within the community."

Although it is a Catholic school, students from a non-catholic family can still attend.

An example of how student numbers have dropped, is the new high school which is being built to accommodate 390 students, compared to the present one which can accommodate 540 students.

What mayor Moore offers Didsburians

Dorothy Moore

by Tamara Collins

Didsbury mayor, Dorothy Moore, is planning on running for mayor again in October. Moore, who is also vice president of the Alberta Urban Municipalities Association (AUMA), offers Didsburians some unique benefits.

"I was elected last fall (2003) at two levels, first as director for all towns South of Bowden, then by all representatives of councils for all towns in Alberta as the Vice President for all of the Towns in Alberta," said Moore. "As South Director, I serve on the AUMA Board. As Vice President, I also serve on the Executive Committee of AUMA, representing all towns when meeting with the Premier, Members of the Legislature and Cabinet Ministers, as well as City Councils and non-political provincial lead-

In addition to this, Moore chairs the AUMA Strategic Policy Committee, which is planning how best to meet the challenges that municipalities will be facing in the future.

"I also serve on the Infrastructure Canada Alberta Program, which ranks and approves Federal/Provincial project two-third's funding grants for Alberta municipalities," said Moore. "The AAMD&C/AUMA Rural/Urban Cost Sharing Task Force that I serve on is a committee of rural and urban municipalities which will be presented for approval to the two municipal organizations this fall."

This benefits Didsburians, because the issues that face Didsbury are common to other towns in Alberta.

"It is important to have a strong voice advocating for town issues," said Moore. "Cities have direct access to the government. Towns do not have this advantage singularly, but as a group we have over 400,000 residents. When we all focus on common issues, we are listened to."

Not paying for policing for the latter part of 2004 was just a first step on Moore's agenda for a better future for towns.

All municipalities are asking for a New Deal for municipalities that would include provincial and federal fuel tax rebates. Sustainable funding is the goal.

"The education portion of your tax bill that the town is forced to collect needs to be reduced and eventually withdrawn," said Moore. "Motion 501, supporting this direction was passed in the Alberta Legislature with wide support. Recent meetings with the Premier and the Minister of Municipal Affairs provide hope that there may be some movement on reducing education property tax. Property taxes should then be reduced proportionately."

With Moore being so involved provincially in Edmonton, concerns could arise that it is costing Didsbury money. Fortunately, this is not the case.

"It does not cost Didsburians one penny," said Moore. "AUMA pays travel and expenses and a modest per diem rate so that even the smallest communities can afford to send representatives."

Moore does not let her busy schedule interfere with her mayor and council responsibilities either.

"AUMA has a policy that local council responsibilities come first. I have never missed a council meeting and I don't serve on council committees, just appeal boards," said Moore. "Sometimes my deputy mayor or alternate attends local events or commission meetings on my behalf, and I attend Meet the Taxpayer meetings whenever I can. A lot of the volunteer time I put in at the Town is on evenings and weekends."

Moore believes it is important to be represented provincially, because it is a responsibility of a mayor, according to the Municipal Government Act, to represent the Town to other and outside governments.

"The progress we have made and are working on regionally and provincially recently is the result of alliances and representation outside our boundaries. There is much more that must be done for Didsbury's sustainability," said Moore.

Looking into the future, Moore says the most important thing is to be elected by Didsburians as mayor on October 18.

"The focus and reason for the other responsibilities has always been the wellbeing of Didsbury and then for all towns I am responsible to," said Moore. "If I am elected mayor, I will run as Director for South Towns, and then for Vice President for Towns to bring our issues forward strongly and consistently."

New High School Update - part 3

Ian Taylor, Trustee Ward 9

The layout of the school you see here is the result of many sessions involving the Design Team and the architects. We have tried to provide the features ranked high by people who attended the open house on April 27th. The results of the survey taken then gave priority to having an open and bright building, a large gym, spaces for arts, music, drama, and shops, and a structured layout.

The large lot has allowed us to put the school on one level - a great asset for handicap access. The front of the school, with its curved walls, will face north west and be quite close to 15th Ave..

Let's imagine you are a visitor to the school and describe what you see as you come in through the main entry top right. The administration offices and staff room area are immediately to your right. Having the offices by the main entrance gives better supervision on who is entering and leaving the building and provides visitors with immediate access to staff. To your left is the band room. It is spacious, with a high ceiling, practice rooms, and easy access to the gym for performances.

As you look straight ahead you see the student gathering area. It's ceiling, as tall as the gym's, is lit by natural light coming from high windows that overlook the library roof to the north. There are long steps in this area where students may sit. The raised area created by the steps can serve as a stage for an audience in the gym. Normally there will be a moveable wall across here, but the idea is to have transparent panels so that any activity in the gym can be seen from the gathering area.

The entrance to the gym is on your left and close to the main entrance for availability by community groups in the evening. The floor area is 690 sqm which gives plenty of room for a full size basketball court with lots of space around the perimeter for spectators as well as pull-out bleachers on the east wall. The student change rooms and the phys. ed. office are on the west wall with direct access into the gym. Students can reach the playing fields through doors in the south east corner.

The gym and student gathering area have the highest ceilings, the band room, library, and shop, are the next highest while the rest of the school has the same roof height.

As you head west through the student gathering area the spacious library of 180 sqm is on your right. An art room and classroom complete the front of the school. Ahead of you now is one of the two student entrances facing 16th st. where buses will park. Turn left and you look down a long hallway to the south where most of the classrooms are located. Of particular interest are the two science labs and farther down the foods and fashion lab, (home ec.). This latter is situated close to the gym for those occasions when refreshments may need to be served to audiences or spectators.

Below the gym is the fabrication lab. (shop). It is considerably smaller than the present high school shop which was designed to hold two classes with two teachers. We have to keep in mind that in all of these considerations we are designing a small high school of 390 students with a limit of 4,200 sqm. That's modest compared with the present building of 5,200 sqm with a capacity of 550 students, (originally intended for grades 7-12).

The classroom below the science labs will probably be the main computer centre, but with the portability provided by the new wireless technology there is less need to have computers designated to one area.

Next time, I hope to share some visuals on how the school will look from the outside. Remember, we are looking for community and corporate partnerships in developing the grounds around the school.

This is the third of several ongoing articles written with the intent of keeping the community informed on the new high school's progress. If you have questions or comments you could contact Roy Brassard at 335-4530 or myself at 335-8575.

OPINIONS EDITORIAL

Religion and school

TAMARA COLLINS
EDITORIAL

All my school years were spent at a Catholic school, and if I could go back, I would not change a thing.

Religion was always one of my favourite subjects, and I think it is really too bad that the students here in Didsbury are not offered this subject. Where are these students suppose to learn about God, in church? Although I think attending church is very important, I am not sure I believe it is the best environment for a young student to learn about religion.

What I learned in Religion class, went far beyond what Catholics believe and why. I learned about each and every religion, different beliefs, different Gods, and different methods of worship.

I learned about war, and peace, friendships, in fact relationships of all kinds.

I think religion is very important, and it is too bad that the only way religion can be taught in the classroom here, is if our students were bused to a Catholic school in Olds.

What programs will these students face losing if they are divided up into two groups, either group just barely surviving. Our student numbers have already dropped dramatically in the past five years, what will happen if we take the ones that are still here, and divide them up.

I do believe a Catholic district is a great idea, but I think for the separate and public schools to share a building is a solution to these problems.

MLA Column: Report of the MLA Committee on Strengthening Alberta's Role in Confederation

Albertans are innovators and builders. We are proud Canadians who want our concerns heard about the way our country operates. We understand that we cannot always get our way on national issues, but we deserve the right to have our say and to have our voices taken seriously.

Between January and March of this year, an Alberta government MLA Committee travelled to a dozen communities across Alberta - listening to Albertans about how to make our province stronger in Canada. The MLA Committee on Strengthening Alberta's Role in Confederation held 13 public forums and received more than 700 submissions from people who attended those meetings, as well as those who contacted the Committee through a web site, e-mails and telephone calls.

The Committee has now released a report with 26 recommendations. Some of the recommendations build on Alberta government initiatives already underway in Senate reform, health care renewal, the Canadian Wheat Board monopoly, agreements with other provinces, and making sure provinces have a say when the federal government negotiates international agreements in areas of provincial jurisdiction.

The MLA Committee on Strengthening Alberta's Role in Confederation also recommends that the Alberta government establish a fund for legal challenges when the federal government intrudes into areas of provincial responsibility; that an Alberta office be established in Ottawa to represent our concerns directly to the federal government; and that Alberta work closely with the new Council of the Federation to bring about Senate reform, health care renewal, the transfer of tax points from the federal government to the provinces, and reduced barriers to trade within Canada.

While acknowledging the province's historic ties to the RCMP, the Committee recommends that a detailed study on the costs and benefits of an Alberta police service be done before a new policing agreement is negotiated with the federal government.

The Committee also recommends that Alberta negotiate a tax collection agreement with the federal government that provides our province with tax flexibility.

These are only a few of the topics that the MLA Committee's report focuses on. The recommendations are suggestions by the Committee to the Alberta government. They are not government policy. Each of the report's recommendations has potential benefits and drawbacks that will have to be carefully considered when the government decides which recommendations it might wish to pursue. The task for the Alberta government now is to carefully examine the costs and implications of the committee's recommendations.

I encourage you to read the report for yourself. As your MLA, I welcome and encourage your feed back on the report. The report is available on the Government of Alberta web site.

Slow Down!!

Recently I spotted a large billboard sign which read "Slow down it won't kill you," this could be taken two ways, first, slow down, it might save a life, secondly, slow down, it won't hurt us to take our time. It seems imperative these days that when we travel we think of going from A to B without enjoying the beauty around us during our travel time. We have a desire to go just that few miles over and above the speed limit, we want to make 'more time', be wherever we are going 'in record time'. Sometimes, we read, this causes 'road rage' how sad. Why is this? Why are we in such a rush?

All we have is this day, yesterday is passed, and tomorrow hasn't come yet, do we try to enjoy our day, make the most of it, remember to take time 'to smell the roses' - time to visit with someone, be an encouragement, reach out to someone who might need a friend this day, or will we continue to rush into our day, plans all made ahead of time. The choice is ours, the choices these days are many, but few can actually benefit us. This is a new day, can we make a difference? Of course we can.

Catholic School boundaries expanding to Didsbury

By now many, if not all of the residents of Didsbury and surrounding area have been contacted by representatives of the Red Deer Catholic School Division, which wishes to extend its boundaries into Didsbury. I am writing today to voice my opposition to possible expansion, as well as to encourage this community to carefully consider the consequences if the expansion is successful. I am frustrated by the possible expansion of a Red Deer board into the Didsbury area. My concerns have little to do with religion but rather with the educational integrity of the school system.

If this expansion goes ahead, it will mean a declined enrolment in the schools, and in turn less opportunities for students in both school systems. For some time now, student enrolment in rural Alberta, including Didsbury, has been declining. Didsbury's projected enrolment for September 2004 is 20% less than in 1999. There are a number of reasons for the decline: smaller families; migration of younger families to the city; more people who are retiring to small towns do not have children, etc. As enrolment in our schools declines, the number of class options available to our students is restricted. Anything that further fragments those enrolment numbers causes an increased negative impact. The resulting low enrolment then hurts both school systems (public and separate) when the limited financial resources for this community must be shared. For example, music, drama, and band programs as well as physical education specialists will see an impact.

You should know that if the proposed expansion occurs students joining the Red Deer system will be bused to Olds, where the separate division has been successful in expanding its district. I don't relish the thought of Didsbury students spending those additional hours on the bus going to and from school. You may also be interested to know that since there is no school available to the Red Deer system in Olds, that it is not certain where their school would be located. In Stettler, the separate school system is located in a mall. In addition, I am not comfortable having our students represented by someone as far away as Red Deer and unfamiliar with our community and families.

The potential for separate school division expansion began with the signing of Alberta's constitution back in 1905. The constitution provided a right for the minority faith, either Protestant or Catholic, in a specific area set out by the province, to establish its own school. All that is required is for three people of that minority faith (which is Catholic in Didsbury) to make a request for a school formation and assure that sufficient numbers are available. Interestingly, separate school expansion was never an issue when municipal taxes directly supported local school divisions. It is only since the province began distributing school taxes on a per student basis among all school divisions, that this has become an issue. Now that each child carries with them a dollar value, school division expansion has become financially attractive.

Recently, the separate system has been allowed to expand its boundaries and take in additional students. Since these students are not "new" to the area, they must be drawn from the present system. As this happens, there is further fragmentation of the enrolment numbers that I referred to earlier. I don't believe this to be in the best educational interests of any of Didsbury's students. Nor do I believe such a divisive action to be positive for the Didsbury community.

If the expansion were to occur, I would like the entire issue to be put to a community discussion. That way, we all could have a say in a decision that will affect all of the students in Didsbury. However, under the School Act, the faith community alone, many of whom will not even have children in the system, will make the decision.

If representatives of the Red Deer Catholic School Division contact you, even though they may happen to be a neighbour or someone in the community you know, I sincerely hope you will take the time to ask about the ramifications of the possible expansion and about its impact on Didsbury's children now and in the future.

MOUNTAIN VIEW COUNTY

Building committee receives extension

by Carla Victor

Mountain View County's Building Committee was unprepared to bring final modifications that would bring their new administration building in as budgeted, Aug. 25.

Meetings to discuss modifications will take longer than expected, said Councilor and Building Committee member Charlie Van Arnem.

At a special meeting, Aug. 11, council was informed current designs for the building would cost $1.13 million more than the budgeted amount, originally set at $5.6 million.

The building committee was directed by council to meet with Dawson and Wallace Construction Company to explore options that would bring the price of the building within budget.

"We have made extensive progress at bringing the building in on budget, but we are not complete," said Van Arnem adding price estimates for mechanical designs were holding up the process.

"I know we need to complete this soon, but doing it right is more important."

Van Arnem went on to say, had council avoided all the delay, this same building would have cost much less one year ago.

"Had this happened one year ago, all this would have been avoided."

Van Arnem asked for and received two more weeks to finalize plans. He suggested a special meeting would be called at that time.

Councillor Pat James requested council be brought up to speed before that public meeting.

"I think it might be prudent for all of council to have this discussion before the final decision is made, I don't want unresolved questions at that special meeting," said James.

At the Aug. 11 meeting council refused five complete bids, from construction companies, ranging from Dawson and Wallace's bid of $5.185 million to $5.780 million. Had council chosen the lowest bidder, total costs would have soared to $6.270 million.

Didsburians helping the hungry

by Tamara Collins and Heather Plett

Imagine putting your children to bed without supper because you had nothing to offer them to eat. Imagine using the last of your flour to bake a loaf of bread and not knowing where you'd get any for tomorrow.

All over the world, people are living with that reality. Worldwide, 842 million people are chronically undernourished. In most cases, these individuals are victims of circumstances beyond their control - war, national disasters, disease, poor economy, etc. The Canadian Foodgrains Bank (CFGB) is working with Canadians to gather resources (money, grain, and agricultural commodities) to provide relief for people in crisis.

There are three growing projects in the Didsbury area, the Rosebud Community Growing project, the Didsbury Growing project and the Bergthal Mennonite Growing project. Each of these projects has the same goal, to help the hungry through grain.

Donated grain provides food for people in emergency situations and is used as payment for work on community development projects designed to improve local food self-sufficiency, such as irrigation canals, fish ponds and water wells. Cash donations are used to purchase additional food, assist with transportation, or to buy and distribute local seeds and tools so families can plant a new crop following drought, flooding or conflict.

In many areas of Canada, communities rally together to raise resources for the Foodgrains Bank, such as here in Didsbury. Community growing projects select a portion of land which they plant and harvest and donate the proceeds to the Foodgrains Bank. Other communities are finding unique opportunities for fund-raising such as corn mazes, garden tours, harvest celebrations, cattle auctions, and community sales.

The Didsbury growing project is the largest in the area, with 125 acres of canola, followed by the Rosebud with 110 acres of timothy hay, and the Bergthal Mennonite with 80 acres of barley.

This is the seventh year for the Bergthal Mennonite growing project.

"We get a lot of help from volunteers," said Eric Goerzen, Bergthal Mennonite growing project organizer. "We want to involve the community as much as possible. They help us plant, spray, and harvest."

The group is planning on swathing their barley next week.

"I was involved in the Canadian Food Grain Bank for many years, and my father was involved for many years before that," said Goerzen. "I wanted to get more hands on involvement, then some land became available."

To make a donation to this project, or to help volunteer you can contact Eric at 337-2389. Donations can also be made through the Bergthal Mennonite church.

This project is located between Carstairs and Didsbury.

Where are the resources being used? Here are a few of the examples of projects the Foodgrains Bank is pursuing or has completed recently.

Sudan

In Sudan, more than 1 million villagers have abandoned their homes as warring militia wreak destruction and terror. Many families are now living in overcrowded camps and are in desperate need of aid. Canadian Foodgrains Bank has sent a delegation of people, consisting of the executive director and representatives of three of our member agencies (Mennonite Central Committee, Christian Reformed World Relief Committee, and United Church Canada) to Sudan to prepare a response to the crisis. They have been meeting with on-the-ground partners to determine how assistance can be delivered to the area and distributed to the people who need it most.

North Korea (DPRK)

A container shipment with 2,121 tonnes of wheat flour was shipped to North Korea this past year. The wheat flour was combined with other ingredients at local food factories to produce 3,262 tonnes of fortified cereal milk blend to feed over 900,000 children as well as pregnant and lactating mothers. and decrease malnutrition. Bangladesh

In northern Bangladesh, where a severe tornado left countless people homeless and without livestock or crops, CFGB is providing emergency relief to help families survive until they can begin to produce their own livelihood again.

The Rosebud Community project is in its second year, and they did their swathing earlier this month.

"We have volunteers of all ages who help make this possible," said Jack Feenstra, organizer. "This is a community project."

The land for this project is donated by Wayne Poffenroth.

To make a donation to this project you can visit the Mountain View Credit Union where an account is set up for them. If you would like a receipt, you can drop a check off at the Didsbury

Review, and a receipt will be issued to you at a later time.

The CFGB is unique in its structure. It brings together 13 church agencies, representing over 10,000 congregations. These agencies each have an account with the Bank and each develop their own programming overseas, working with partner organizations to distribute the food to areas of need. In many of the larger projects, however, agencies work together to maximize their resources.

In addition to the donations of Canadians, the Foodgrains Bank is greatly supported by the Government of Canada. Through CIDA (Canadian International Development Agency) the government provides additional funds, up to $16 million annually, on a 4:1 matching basis for eligible programs, greatly enhancing the value of donations and expanding the programs of the Canadian Foodgrains Bank.

What are the results? When donated to the Foodgrains Bank, $100 feeds a family of 5 for three months. One tonne of grain feeds 2,500 people for a day. The proceeds for one market steer will supply enough tools and seed to help 100 families plant a new crop (hoes, machetes, rakes, watering cans and maize, beans, wheat and rice seed).

CFGB has an excellent record for delivering the food to where it needs to be. Over 95% of the grain shipped reaches the intended destination. Less than 10% of donations are used for administration costs.

With the help of Canadians, CFGB is able to provide food so that thousands of mothers don't have to put their children to bed hungry tonight.

Habitat for Humanity breaks ground on first home in Cremona

By Shawne Mohl

What once seemed like the impossible for Priscilla Anthony, a single mother to two young daughters and currently a Didsbury resident, is now becoming possible, thanks to Habitat for Humanity Mountain View.

Anthony and her two young children, Tamara, 15 and Nichole, 5 have been selected as the family to move into the local Habitat for Humanity home, and took part in the official groundbreaking ceremonies, this past Saturday.

This will not only be the first home that Anthony will have the opportunity to purchase, but it's also a first for the local Habitat for Humanity Mountain View chapter as this is their first building project.

Habitat for Humanity Mountain View first came together approximately two-and-a-half years ago, when it was shown that there was definitely a need for affordable housing within Mountain View County.

The local chapter started moving ahead faster than ever once the United Church in Cremona stepped up to the plate and donated the first parcel of land for this project, just a few months ago.

The local chapter of Habitat for Humanity works very similar to an Elks Club or a Legion, where they run independently but have larger resources to turn to called, Habitat for Humanity Canada.

Habitat Canada provides information, support, and at times financial aide to their different chapters across the Nation.

"We are all responsible for our own local projects though," explained Habitat for Humanity Mountain View chairperson, Steve Polvi.

One of the first things Polvi pointed out was that these homes are not a free-be, and that the family selected needs to work very hard to earn their house, and they have to actually purchase the home from Habitat.

"We offer a hand-up, not a handout... The family doesn't get the house for free," Polvi said. "They actually take out a mortgage with us, and pay it back to us over a 20 year timeframe."

Habitat for Humanity is an international organization seeking to eliminate poverty housing in over 79 countries worldwide.

Habitat for Humanity is an independent, non-profit, ecumenical housing program dedicated to the elimination of poverty housing by building homes in partnership with families in need.

The ministry of Habitat is to provide simple, decent, affordable housing to those who would not qualify or be able to afford a conventional mortgage. The Habitat program is about home ownership, a long-term solution designed to break the poverty cycle.

There are 12 families in total which applied to live in the home in Cremona, and each family was required to go through quite an extensive process.

"The person has had to have lived within the County for at least a year, they have to be capable to pay the no-interest loan back, as well as a few other things. We go through quite a process in selecting the family," Polvi said.

The purpose of the project, however, is to provide a home to a family who never would have been able to afford to purchase a home otherwise.

"What we do is...they pay back their mortgage at a zero per cent interest rate, making it affordable," Polvi added.

With groundbreaking occurring this past weekend, Polvi says that the local Habitat group hopes to begin actual construction sometime in early September.

And, how fast the house actually goes up, all depends on how many volunteers step up to the plate, Polvi said.

The local Habitat group is still seeking volunteers to step forward and help with everything possible from the actual construction to electrical work to plumbing to installing the furnace.

"We are hoping to get more volunteers stepping forward in the next few weeks," Polvi said.

He says that the local Habitat for Humanity chapter can provide tax receipts for cash donations, of course, but also for donations in kind.

Any costs which cannot be donated will be paid for through money that the group has in the bank from different fund-raising projects they have done over the past two-and-a-half years.

"We have approximately $45,000 in the bank from different fund-raising projects. A large portion of that came in the form of a $30,000 grant from Habitat Canada," Polvi said. "That (grant) really set us up for this build."

Polvi says it's quite exciting to actually be moving forward with the project, after working for two long years on the project.

"For the last two years it has all been on paper and now we have something concrete to work on," he said. "We are now in motion and that's exciting."

When construction is completed the house will have cost in the neighbourhood of approximately $70,000.

The house will not be anything fancy, although it will be a home to three people that would have never had an opportunity to live in their own home before.

"We want to build simple, affordable housing. By controlling how much we spend on the project, then the more people we can open it up to," Polvi said.

As one of the requirements for this project, as Habitat for Humanity says they provide a 'hand up and not a hand out,' the selected family are required to put in 500 hours of their time which are referred to as, 'sweat hours.'

The family, if they are capable, can help with the construction of their own home or else assist in other aspects of the actual build.

With this actual project, Polvi says the house will probably go up faster than future projects, so Anthony will probably be donating her time in the local Habitat's next build spearheaded to take place in Sundre.

For Anthony she says she has never felt like this and is very excited to be moving into her new home in the future.

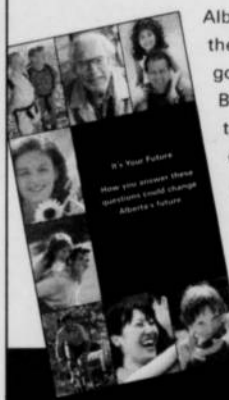

"To me it felt like I was winning the 6/49. It is pretty fantastic," she said. "I found out about a week before my birthday too, so that was just icing to the cake."

Run, bike or rollerblade for a cure

It is a sad truth that few of our families remain unaffected by cancer. With over 200 different diseases sharing the name, one in three Canadians will develop some form of cancer in their lifetime. In 1980, Terry Fox, suffering from bone cancer and determined to find a cure, began his Marathon of Hope with the goal of increasing cancer awareness, while raising money to fund research.

Didsbury is one of over 1,100 communities in Canada who will take part in the national Terry Fox Run on Sunday, September 19, 2004. "We will have two 5 km courses set up," says Brenda Hemming, who, along with her husband Grant, coordinates the run locally. "It's best if people show up around noon to fill out the registration form, and to turn over their pledges." Last year in Alberta, over 1.5 million dollars was raised, most of which goes directly towards funding cancer research

Hemming is appreciative of the support shown by the community in the past, but admits we could do more. "It would be nice to see the local schools take a more active role. School age children really benefit from the run, learning about cancer and supporting a good cause." Principal Brent Runnet, of Ross Ford Elementary School in Didsbury, plans to discuss their involvement at a staff meeting this week.

"We hope people will continue to support the run," says Hemming. "Cancer isn't going away." The 24th annual Terry Fox Run begins at 12:30 pm at the Didsbury Memorial Complex. Participants are welcome to walk, run, bike, wheelchair, or roller blade. Additional information is available by contacting the Hemmings at 335-2390 after 6:00 pm. Please join us and help find a cure!

Keeping the 'local' in local hockey

A part of playing minor hockey in rural Alberta is accepting that there will likely be some travel involved. For many parents, there simply isn't the time to shuttle their aspiring young superstars to neighboring communities on a weekly basis. But there is another option for children ages 5 - 18 years wanting show off their skills.

House League Hockey, an alternative offered by Becky and Perry Sundberg, allows Didsbury kids to get in to the game without getting out of town.

"This is our fifth year doing this," Becky explains. The program runs for 18 weeks, beginning October 9th. Players are sorted in to different age groups, and each group receives an ice time every week. "There are some drills, and then a scrimmage," says Sundberg.

Registration for House League Hockey will be held from 7:00 - 8:30 pm, September 7th, 2004, in the Multi-Purpose Room. Participation is inexpensive - $40 for beginners (ages 5 - 7 years), and $80 for all others, with insurance and jerseys provided at additional cost.

More information can be obtained by phoning 335-3831. Sundberg adds, "We've had a good experience so far, and this year should be the same."

Grizzlys bolstered by Didsbury defenseman

This past week and a half has been a busy time for a group of promising young hockey players in Olds.

The Olds Grizzlys, of the Alberta Junior Hockey League, began their annual selection camp the weekend before last, and have attracted hopefuls from near and far. Long time Didsbury resident Billy Way, a rookie with the Grizzlys during the 2003-2004 season, again attended the camp this year.

One of only a few team members remaining from last season, which saw the Grizzlys ousted in the AJHL Semi-Final playoff round by Grande Prairie, Billy is excited about another opportunity to make a run to the top. "Last year we had more of a veteran team," explains Way, a defenseman hoping to see more playing time as a returning player.

"This is sort of a rebuilding year. We've got a lot of young guys, but they look solid and fast. They bring a lot of energy to the team." Now in his second season, Billy is looking forward to sharing his experience with his new teammates.

Most will be playing their first season in the AJHL. "You help them out, kind of look out for them, especially the really young guys," says Way. "But they can handle it."

The group of players, now around 40 strong, will be cut back to 24-25 by the end of the week. "There is a meeting of the team on Friday. That's when the final cuts are made," says Way. "By that time, we are all pretty good friends. It's not fun to see those guys go."

Billy is eager for the start of the new season in Olds. "The whole community really gets behind the team," he says. "The fans are great. They show us a lot of support." Billy is optimistic about the team's chances this year. "We have a good defensive core, and a fast, young team. We're a team that could cause some upsets."

Olds Grizzlys' defenseman

DIDSBURY AND DISTRICT FIRE DEPARTMENT

Up And Down The Fireman's Ladder

by Tyrone Patten

Having grown up in Alberta, and being used to the weather, I have had a great summer. I know others that think the weather here leaves much to be desired.

But either way, we must think about our fall training schedule. First on the list is driver training in Olds on Sept. 10, 11, 12. The instructors are certified through the National Academy of Professional Drivers. They will show the students how to safely manoeuvre the trucks in various situations and a little bit faster than normal.

Next, we will be hosting an S 500 course on Sept. 18, 19, and 25, 26. This is similar to the old Firefighter 3 course. It teaches such things as ladder work, ventilation and salvage and overhaul.

There will also be an air brake course in Red Deer in Sept. I don't have any dates at this time. I will keep everyone posted on all these courses in future columns.

The first meeting in Sept. is always election of officers. This is always exciting and as always I will report the results in the next article.

Since last report we have responded to 19 calls. They were:

- Alarm, no fire 5
- Ambulance assists 5
- Wild land fires 4
- Haz. Mat. 3 MVC's 2

There were 6 calls during the day, 10 in the evening, and 3 at night, for a total of 15.5 hours in the field. You will have noticed two new categories listed above. These are how S.T.A.R.S. dispatch classifies calls. Wild land fire used to be a grass or brush fire, and MVC stands for a motor vehicle collision.

From the archives comes this piece from the Aug. 4 1909 issue of the Pioneer.

It is quite lengthy so I will just give the highlights. Complete with the original spelling and punctuation. It is titled The Fire Brigade.

It has been written "that if a thing is worth doing it is worth doing well" This quotation applies to everything, fire protection included.

The question of painting and putting eave troughs on the fire hall, brought up at the special meeting of the Town Council, brought to our minds that we had two up-to-date chemical fire engines, a new fire hall-but no fire brigade.

.. To get our moneys worth out of the engines we must have a trained fire brigade.

If a fire were to break out in town, every able bodied man would at once rush to help and the consequence would be that there would be so many as to cause confusion to rein, and render the engines practically useless. If there was a trained brigade the men would know there respective positions and duties, and would in consequence do much more work in less time.

Looking at the question from another standpoint, we must remember that chemical engines are built expressly for quick transit.

To take our engines to a block that is blazing furiously would be next to folly.

If the engines can be got there before the conflagration has left the confines of one building; it would mean the saving of the whole town.

It proves therefore to get full value for money spent, we must have a small body of men who are efficiently trained as to the workings of the machines, so that in an emergency the engines might be put to use in the smallest amount of time. ...

... Almost every town along the line has a trained volunteer fire brigade, and for its own sake it behoves Didsbury to see that it soon gets one. ...

Where should a debt-free Alberta invest?

- ☒ Health Care
- ☒ Roads & Buildings
- ☒ Technology
- ☒ Arts and Culture
- ☒ Economic Development
- ☒ Environment
- ☒ Reducing Poverty
- ☒ Education

Higher education makes all of the above possible.

When we invest in post-secondary education, we invest in everything that makes a good life possible. Right now, a debt-free Alberta gives us a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to invest in higher education.

We must act now to ensure a strong future for our students and our province.

☒ Higher education makes it all possible. Let's invest in our universities.

A message from the Universities of Lethbridge, Athabasca, Calgary and Alberta in support of post-secondary education.

Small Business Week Gala and new award presentation

by Tamara Collins

Business owners, retailers, and anyone else interested, the Didsbury and District Chamber of Commerce is getting ready for the 2nd annual Small Business Week Gala.

It will take place on Oct. 29th at the Memorial Complex, in the Multi Purpose Room.

The guest speaker for this event will be Nomi Whalen, former Alderwomen for the City of Calgary and one of Alberta's most prominent Marriage commissioners.

Whalen is a former High School teacher, and a recipient of many commendations and community awards. Her continued involvement with her community along with her many weddings has given her a well known public persona. She was married to Calgary broadcaster, Ed Whalen, is a mother to five children and nine grandchildren.

"We are very excited to have Nomi speak at this event," said Penny Lind, Chamber president. "Last year we had an excellent guest speaker, and we are happy to have one again this year."

For the first time ever, the Chamber will be awarding a Small Business of the Year award. This award is designed to recognize Didsbury and district businesses that provide top quality customer service and community support. This award is to showcase the entrepreneurial spirit found in our business community.

Tickets are $30 per person, or $55 per couple. The Chamber is also offering a special deal for businesses and members of the community with a table of eight for $200. Tickets are available at the Chamber office, Carousel Cottage, Curves, M. Lennox and Associates and the Town office. Small Business of the Year criteria and nomination forms are also available at these places, and available on the Chamber website.

The Small Business Week committee will evaluate nominations on the basis of operating success, innovation, community work and service performance. All nominees must be independently owned and operated and the majority of their business activity must take place within the province of Alberta.

Anyone can nominate a business, however award recipients can only receive the award once every 10 years. Your nomination forms must be in to the Chamber by Sept. 30.

The event is planned to start at 6 pm with cocktails, dinner is to follow at 7 pm, the award presentation is planned for 7:45 pm, which will be followed by the guest speaker and then a dance. Presently these times are tentative.

"We are very excited about building this Gala into a major event each year," said Lind. "There will be entertainment and fun, and it is semi-formal."

Last year the event was small, and a meeting was held during it. This year the Chamber is expecting approximately 300 people, and a meeting will not be held.

"This event is all about networking, and business people getting to know each other," said Lind. "It is an event you will not want to miss."

You can visit the Chamber website to pick up an application at www.didsburychamber.ca.

Focus on the Family

QUESTION: I have been teaching school for 30 years and I am noticing a significant change in the health of my students. More of them are overweight, and they just don't get enough exercise. I wonder if my observation is accurate, and if so, what is causing it.

DR. DOBSON: You are absolutely correct. A recent medical study conducted at Columbia Children's Hospital in Ohio has confirmed that today's children are heavier and have significantly higher cholesterol and triglyceride levels than kids did even 15 years ago. One of the researchers, Dr. Hugh Allens, said, "Unless these trends change, 30 million of the 80 million children alive today in the United States will eventually die of heart disease."

Dr. Allens said, "Kids need to turn off the TV, get off the couch and stop the nincompooping of America." The problem is that high-fat junk food has replaced good nutrition. And even when healthy foods are consumed, kids are not exercising the calories off. Between television, carpools, computer games and hanging out at the pizza parlor, kids just don't run and jump like they used to.

So Mom and Dad should find activities to do together with kids that involve movement -- things like walking and bicycling, playing catch or hiking. They can also get their children involved in community or school sports programs, ranging from softball to soccer.

Children are busy forming habits for a lifetime, so eating right and exercising every day will contribute to greater health in the future.

QUESTION: The children in our neighborhood are bratty with one another and disrespectful with adults. This upsets me, but I don't know what to do about it. I don't have a right to discipline the children of my neighbors, so they get away with murder. How can I deal with this?

DR. DOBSON: Parents in a neighborhood need to learn to talk to each other about their kids -- although that is difficult to do! There is no quicker way to anger one mother than for another woman to criticize her precious cub. It is a delicate subject, indeed. That's why the typical neighborhood is like yours, providing little feedback to parents in regard to the behavior of their children. The kids know there are no lines of communication between adults, and they take advantage of the barrier.

What each block needs is a mother who has the courage to say to her neighbors: "I want to be told what my child does when she is beyond her own yard. If she is a brat with other children, I would like to know it. If she is disrespectful with adults, please mention it to me. I will not consider it tattling and I won't resent your coming to me. I hope I can share my insights regarding your children, too. None of our kids is perfect, and we'll know better how to teach them if we can talk openly to each other as adults."

Until this openness exists between parents living nearby, the children will create and live by their own rules in the neighborhood.

QUESTION: As a single mother, I'd like to leave my children with friends or relatives for a few days and get some time for myself, but I'm worried about how this might affect them. Will they feel deserted?

DR. DOBSON: Not only is a brief time away from your children not likely to be hurtful, it will probably be healthy for them as well. One of the special risks faced by single parents is possibility of a dependency relationship developing that will trap their children at an immature stage. This danger is increased when wounded people cling to each other exclusively for support in stressful times. Spending a reasonable amount of time apart can teach independence and give everyone a little relief from the routine.

Therefore, if you have a clean, safe place to leave your children for a week or two, by all means, do it. You'll be more refreshed and better able to handle your usual "homework" when you return.

DIDSBURY TOWN COUNCIL Council Highlights - August 23, 2004

Council moved that the Standing Committees on Community Services, Operational Services and Corporate Services be dissolved and that a Policy Review Committee be constituted with the mandate of generally developing and evaluating Town policies.

A question regarding implementation of a Smoking Bylaw would not be put on the upcoming election ballot.

The Town of Didsbury received a Safety Recognition Award from the Alberta Minister of Municipal Affairs under the Safety Codes Act.

The contamination took place on August 19, 2004 and is in the process of being investigated by Alberta Environment. The Town of Didsbury did not spill the oil.

The Centennial Planning Committee gave two packages of materials to Council. Council is requested to make a Light Standard Banner for the Centennial Planning Committee.

An Open House for public input will take place on August 25, 2004 from 7 pm to 9 pm at the Eldon Foote Hall to look at proposed Land Use Bylaw changes to Bylaw 00-08.

The Town has invited

Didsbury youth to look at the feasibility of possible relocation of the Skateboard park.

Council gave approval for the road to be closed on Main Street in front of the Train Station for the Kick Off to the Centennial Celebration on Sunday, September 26, 2004.

OBITUARY

EMMA STAUFFER - Emma Stauffer passed away peacefully, August 21, 2004, at Three Hills Continuing Care. During her ten months there the staff treated her with love and compassion, as she became everyone's "grandmother". She will be deeply missed by her children: Willard (Marilyn), Ray (Jan), Curly, Virgil (Irene), Arnold (Betty), Lil (Lou) Nobert, Ed (Joyce), Lyle (Daphne); 21 grandchildren, 43 great-grandchildren, ten step grandchildren, 27 step great-grandchildren; sisters: Ruth (Wallace) Brower, Mina (Ernie) Neufeld, Marion (Dean) Harlander; brother-in-law Ian Stauffer (Beatrice); as well as numerous nieces, nephews and friends. Emma was predeceased by her husband, Lloyd, parents Benjamin and Elsa Good; brothers: Howard, Frank, Gordon, Glen, Wesley, Arnold; sisters Eva and Lillian, daughter-in-law, Doreen; two grandsons, Trevor and Andrew; great-granddaughter, Emma and great-grandson Dallas. Born at the family home near Didsbury in 1912, she completed grade eight at Westcott and later studied at Mountain View Bible College. She and Lloyd, married May 15, 1934, spent most of their life raising their seven boys and one daughter on a mixed dairy farm west of Didsbury. They retired to the town in 1968. For several years following Lloyd's passing, she remained in Didsbury and then moved to the Linden Lodge six years ago. She will be fondly remembered for her love of gardening, scrap booking and photography, as well as crafting and picking cranberries. She was very much appreciated for her giving and caring spirit, and her faithfulness to her Saviour, family and friends. Throughout her life she consistently attended and supported the Zion Evangelical Missionary Church in Didsbury. The Celebration Service of her Homegoing was Wednesday, August 25, 2004, at the Zion Evangelical Missionary Church in Didsbury. She was laid to rest in the Didsbury Cemetery, alongside her husband. The Sunset Funeral Service, Linden, Alberta, assisted the family with the arrangements. Donations in Emma's memory may be made to a person or family in need.
